

A reflection of your support for epilepsy research...

...will be success!

One of these dogs has epilepsy. You can't tell which one, and that's why we need a screening test.

Researchers are working to find the genes responsible for epilepsy in the Australian Shepherd in three identified chromosome areas so a screening test can be developed. Please make a donation to support the research. Your donation is tax deductible to the fullest extent of the law. Blood samples are needed from affected dogs and dogs 10+ years old that have never had a seizure. Please see the information below to send in a blood sample from your dog and to make a donation on line or by mail. Thank you!
